WHAT IS GUMBI GUMBI?

Deep in the Australian bush land, Gumbi Gumbi has remained hidden for centuries, only known by native Australians. Gumbi Gumbi is a shrub or medium to large tree, relative to the olive tree and is a rare member of the botanical family Pittosporum.

There are many names for the same Australian native plant including Pittosporum Angustifolium, Pittosporum Phylliraeoides, Gumbi Gumbi, Gumbi, Gumby Gumby, Native Apricot, Cumbi Cumbi, Weeping Pittosporum, Meemeei, Cattle Bush, Bitter Bush, Butter Bush, Berrigan.

Gumbi Gumbi has traditionally been used as an Indigenous medicine for centuries. It is used to support general health and wellbeing to support a wide variety of conditions such as digestive disorders, chronic fatigue, skin disorders, immune conditions, depression, emphysema to name a few.

Gumbi Gumbi is known for the following properties: anti-pruritic, anti-spasmodic, anti-viral and detoxification and galactagogue, and it has shown to improve circulation, blood pressure regulation and boosting of the immune system.

RESEARCH

Research and tests have shown that the Gumbi Gumbi contains Saponins, Tannins and Flavonoids. Studies from the German University have shown Gumbi to boost the immune system and cleanse the body. Some of the activities attributed to flavonoids and tannin include: anti-allergic, antioxidants, anti-inflammatory and anti-viral.

Now research teams around the world are studying native plants such as Gumbi Gumbi to develop new modern treatments. Various tests have shown great results inspiring excitement of the unique properties in Gumbi Gumbi. Some are published, some still remain unpublished due to ongoing research with final results pending.

“

I have been using Nancy's organically sourced supplements for 2 years now. I truly trust her advice as I can see the result of it. The Gumbi Brew is one of Nancy's signature Exilir. I have experienced a huge improvement in my immune system in particular during the colder season, regularity in my bowel movement and energy level throughout the day. Its easy to drink and I particularly love it as Nancy has added Apple Cider Vinegar to it, which has so many health benefits. In addition to that, my family and friends have also noted that my skin has cleared and my complexion is glowing. So, the Gumbi Brew is now my daily tonic in the morning and I am so grateful that Nancy has created such an amazing supplement.
